19 This matter came up for trial on July 15, 2009 on 20 the complaint for partial reversal of the California
21 Office of Administrative Hearings Decision in Case No.
22 N 2007080547, issued on June 24, 2008. Following oral 23 argument and additional briefing by the parties, it is 24 hereby ORDERED, ADJUDGED AND DECREED:

25 The District failed to provide Student a Free
26 Appropriate Public Education (FAPE) by:

- 27 1) Failing to provide Speech and Language
28 services in accord with the June 15,

- 1           2006 Individualized Education Program (IEP);
- 2           2) Failing to develop and implement a
- 3           goal to address Student's unique need in
- 4           the area of auditory processing
- 5           after June 15, 2006;
- 6           3) Failing to develop a goal to
- 7           address Student's need in the area
- 8           of anxiety after October 13, 2006;
- 9           4) Failing to make Student an appropriate
- 10          offer for Extended School Year (ESY) 2007 by
- 11          failing to include OT services, and;
- 12          5) Failing to include the amount of time
- 13          Student would spend in General
- 14          Education (GE) and an appropriate
- 15          explanation why a Special Day Class (SDC)
- 16          was more appropriate in the offer of
- 17          placement in June, 2007.

18          The Reading and Language Center (RLC), a nonpublic

19          agency, provided Student with educational benefits,

20          including increased IQ scores, progress on reading

21          comprehension and OT needs, and improvement in behavior

22          and anxiety-related areas. As RLC provided Student

23          with educational benefits at a time when the District

24          failed to provide FAPE to him, Student's aunt is

25          entitled to reimbursement of the full amount of her
