

FINANCIAL PROFILE REPORTS
(Revised 12/03)

3514

Agencies that require information on firms within the United States may obtain this data from the Procurement Division, Department of General Services, which has contracted for credit rating services. Use of the service for purposes other than as a check on firms to whom credit may be extended is not authorized. The service consists of two parts: (1) a reference book listing the general credit rating of virtually every firm in the United States; and (2) a special detailed, confidential business information report on specific firms. Reports on individual consumers may not be ordered.

Detailed reports contain a comprehensive statement of the background and financial status of the firms. Use of Procurement's reference book is free of charge. Upon written request, single reports may be purchased for a fee. The fee is updated annually; call the Procurement Division for the most current fee. Requests which require immediate information will be charged extra. All reports will be processed on the basis of single reports. All reports may be ordered from:
