

California Building Standards Commission
2525 Natomas Park Drive suite 130
Sacramento CA 95833

Mr. Walls, I think the removal of restriction of the use of PVC and ABS pipes would be bad for the environment. In the case of a fire the toxic fumes could cause great harm to the public as well as spread the fire. Iron pipes would not give off toxic fumes and would not spread the fire. So I don't think it would be smart to change the California Building standards. It would put the public at risk. I don't think it would be wise to install plastic pipes in Hospitals where people go to get well. Thank you

Tair K John

