(Reviewed 7/2015)

Nonrepresented employees may be paid for an overtime meal when they are required to work before or after a regularly scheduled work day and can't be expected to return home for the meal. Represented employees may be paid for an overtime meal in accordance with the MOU. The overtime meal allowance is to enable employees to continue working overtime. Agencies may either provide the meal or grant a meal allowance. An added meal allowance may be granted for each additional six hours worked to a maximum of three overtime meal allowances in any 24-hour period.
